How To Hire Your First AI Employee.

I run 5 of them. They make me $10K a month on LinkedIn in 1 to 2 hours of my time a week. Here's the exact 7-step build, no code.

7 steps, in order | 5 employees running | 1-2 hrs/week of my time

STEP 01

Give it ONE job.

Not "do my marketing." One job. My Scout's job: find posts that beat their author's own average. Bad scoping breaks the employee, every time.

STEP 02

Give it your real facts.

Mine keep a fact bank. My real numbers, real stories, real prices. They never invent. When one doesn't know something, it asks me first.

STEP 03

Give it a gate.

Nothing ships without my click. I approve the copy. I green-light the offer. The employee works. I decide.

STEP 04

Give it the tools the job needs.

Mine read LinkedIn, write drafts, render graphics, check my lead magnet inventory. No tools, just a chatbot.

STEP 05

Make it remember.

Every answer I give gets saved. It never asks the same question twice. It gets smarter about me every week.

STEP 06

Check its work like a boss, not a babysitter.

Every draft passes two audits before I even see it. My time went from doing the work to approving it.

STEP 07

Then hire the next one.

One at a time. Each new employee plugs into the same facts, the same gates, the same memory.

Where most people break this

Most people skip step 2 and step 3. Then wonder why their AI writes generic posts, or posts things they regret.
